

Terms of Use for InnerSpace.ED

Effective date: 12 September 2026

Version: 1.0

1. About These Terms

These Terms of Use govern access to and use of the InnerSpace.ED website and web application, currently available at:

<https://innerspaceed-five.vercel.app>

InnerSpace.ED is currently provided as a free pilot version. It does not offer paid subscriptions, process payments, or provide user accounts.

By accessing or using the professional or interactive features of InnerSpace.ED, the user confirms that they have read and agree to these Terms of Use and the Privacy Policy.

If a user does not agree to these Terms, they must not use the professional or interactive features of InnerSpace.ED.

2. Service Provider

InnerSpace.ED is currently operated by:

Karina Zueva

Munich, Germany

Email: info.innerspace.ed@gmail.com

InnerSpace.ED is currently operated by an individual and is not presented as a registered company.

3. Nature and Purpose of InnerSpace.ED

InnerSpace.ED is a non-medical digital support and educational tool intended for qualified professionals working with eating disorders, body image, anxiety, or related concerns.

The service may include:

- interactive educational materials;
- virtual environments;
- avatar-based exercises;
- locally processed eye-tracking features;
- questionnaires and scoring tools;
- structured prompts and materials that may support professional sessions.

InnerSpace.ED:

- does not make or confirm diagnoses;
- does not prescribe or recommend treatment;
- does not replace a psychiatrist, psychotherapist, psychologist, physician, or other qualified professional;
- does not make clinical decisions;
- does not provide emergency or crisis support;
- must not be used as the sole basis for decisions concerning a person's health, safety, diagnosis, or treatment.

The professional using InnerSpace.ED remains responsible for their independent professional judgement and for deciding whether, when, and how a particular feature should be used.

4. Eligibility and Professional Use

The professional sections of InnerSpace.ED are intended for adults who possess the education, qualifications, experience, or professional supervision appropriate to their intended use of the service.

A user must not falsely represent that they hold a professional qualification, licence, certification, or authorisation.

The operator does not currently independently verify professional credentials. Access to InnerSpace.ED must therefore not be interpreted as confirmation that a user is qualified or authorised to provide professional services.

Users must comply with all laws, professional standards, ethical rules, and supervision requirements applicable to their own work.

5. Use With Clients

Where a professional uses InnerSpace.ED during work with a client, the professional is responsible for:

- determining whether the relevant feature is suitable for that client;
- explaining the nature and purpose of the exercise;

- obtaining any consent required for participation;
- monitoring the client's reactions;
- deciding whether an exercise should be continued, modified, or stopped;
- responding appropriately to distress or deterioration;
- documenting the session where required by professional rules;
- protecting any client information created or retained outside InnerSpace.ED.

A professional must not use InnerSpace.ED where they reasonably believe that doing so would create an unacceptable risk to the client.

The operator of InnerSpace.ED does not enter into a medical, therapeutic, clinical, or other professional relationship with the professional's client.

6. Use With Minors

InnerSpace.ED is not intended for use by minors independently or without professional supervision.

A professional who uses InnerSpace.ED in a session involving a minor is responsible for:

- assessing whether the use is developmentally and professionally appropriate;
- providing information in language the minor can understand;
- obtaining consent from a parent or legal guardian where required;
- considering the minor's own wishes and capacity to consent;
- complying with applicable child-protection, professional, ethical, and legal requirements.

InnerSpace.ED does not verify a client's age and does not collect age information.

7. Safety and Emotional Distress

Some InnerSpace.ED features may involve representations of food, eating environments, body shape, body size, appearance, anxiety, or eating-disorder-related themes. These features may cause discomfort or emotional distress.

Professionals must:

- prepare clients appropriately;
- explain that participation may be stopped at any time;
- monitor distress throughout the exercise;
- avoid coercive use;
- stop or modify an exercise where continued use may be unsafe or inappropriate;
- provide appropriate follow-up within the scope of their professional role.

Users and clients should stop using an interactive feature if they experience severe distress, feel unsafe, or require urgent support.

InnerSpace.ED is not an emergency service. In an urgent or life-threatening situation, users must contact an appropriate local emergency service or crisis-support provider.

7. Technical Limitations and Visual Rendering

InnerSpace.ED uses real-time 3D rendering and depends on the user's device, browser, graphics capabilities, available memory, network connection, and the successful loading of visual assets.

Technical interruptions or rendering errors may occasionally cause a scene, avatar, or non-player character to appear incomplete, distorted, or without an expected visual element. This may include missing clothing, hair, textures, accessories, food items, furniture, or parts of the surrounding environment.

Before displaying a 3D feature to a client, the professional must verify that the scene and all relevant characters have loaded correctly.

If a character appears undressed, incomplete, distorted, or otherwise unsuitable for the intended session, the professional must not continue the exercise. The professional should hide the screen from the client where possible, exit or reload the scene, and confirm that it is displayed correctly before resuming.

The professional should also consider whether an unexpected visual error may be distressing or inappropriate for a particular client.

InnerSpace.ED does not guarantee uninterrupted operation or identical rendering across all devices and browsers. This does not exclude or limit liability in circumstances where liability cannot lawfully be excluded or limited.

9. Camera and Eye-Tracking

The eye-tracking feature requires permission to access the device camera.

Camera video, facial landmarks, gaze coordinates, and attention maps are processed locally on the user's device. They are not transmitted to an InnerSpace.ED application server or stored in an InnerSpace.ED database.

Before using the camera with a client, the professional must:

- explain how the camera will be used;
- inform the client that processing occurs locally;
- obtain any consent required;
- ensure that no unauthorised person can observe or access the session;
- stop camera access if consent is withdrawn.

Users must not use the feature for facial identification, surveillance, covert observation, or any purpose unrelated to the intended professional exercise.

Additional information is provided in the Privacy Policy.

10. Questionnaires, Translations, and Results

InnerSpace.ED may provide questionnaires, scoring functions, explanatory text, translations, and other assessment-related materials.

Unless expressly stated otherwise:

- questionnaire results are provided for informational and educational purposes only;
- results do not constitute a diagnosis;
- results must not be interpreted without appropriate professional context;
- approximate thresholds must not be treated as definitive clinical cut-offs;
- the operator does not review or verify individual results;
- results are not transmitted to the operator.

Translations of questionnaires made available through InnerSpace.ED are provided for familiarisation, educational reference, and pilot testing only.

Unless a translation is expressly identified as an officially validated version:

- it has not been independently psychometrically validated by InnerSpace.ED;
- it must not be treated as an official or validated diagnostic instrument;
- it must not be used as the sole basis for diagnosis, clinical conclusions, treatment decisions, or assessment of clinical change;
- its wording, scoring equivalence, reliability, and validity may differ from the original version;
- users should consult the official validated version and its administration and scoring materials where a validated assessment is required.

The availability of a translation on InnerSpace.ED does not represent a claim that the translation has been approved by the original author, publisher, copyright holder, or relevant professional body unless this is expressly stated.

The professional is responsible for verifying that the selected questionnaire, version, language, scoring method, and interpretation are appropriate and lawfully available for the intended client, jurisdiction, and context.

The inclusion of a questionnaire or translation in InnerSpace.ED does not grant users the right to reproduce, publish, distribute, sell, translate, modify, or incorporate it into another product.

Questionnaire names, items, translations, scoring systems, and related materials may be owned by third parties and may be subject to separate licence terms.

11. Local Data and Client Confidentiality

InnerSpace.ED does not currently provide server-side storage for client records.

Information entered into interactive features is processed locally in the browser. Users remain responsible for information that they independently:

- record;
- photograph;
- copy;
- download;
- print;
- include in professional notes;
- transmit through another service.

Users must not send client names, diagnoses, medical histories, questionnaire responses, screenshots, photographs, or other confidential client information to the operator through Telegram, ordinary email, or another unsecured channel.

When requesting technical support, all examples and screenshots must first be anonymised.

12. Permitted Use

Subject to these Terms, the operator grants the user a limited, personal, non-exclusive, non-transferable, and revocable right to access and use InnerSpace.ED for its intended professional, educational, or pilot purpose.

This permission:

- does not transfer ownership of any part of InnerSpace.ED;
- does not permit resale or sublicensing;
- does not grant a right to access source code;
- may be withdrawn if the user violates these Terms or creates a safety, security, or legal risk.

No broader licence is granted by implication.

13. Prohibited Conduct

Users must not:

- copy or reproduce substantial parts of InnerSpace.ED;
- extract or redistribute its source code, text, visual materials, 3D models, scenes, exercises, or databases;
- sell, sublicense, rent, or commercially redistribute access;
- create a substantially similar commercial product by copying protected elements;
- remove copyright, attribution, or ownership notices;
- bypass access controls or security measures;
- probe, scan, or test the service for vulnerabilities without prior written permission;
- introduce malicious code or interfere with the service;
- use automated tools to scrape or systematically extract content;
- impersonate another person or misrepresent professional qualifications;
- use the service for unlawful, deceptive, discriminatory, abusive, or exploitative purposes;
- use the camera for covert monitoring or identification;
- disclose client information without an appropriate lawful basis and necessary safeguards.

Nothing in these Terms restricts an act that cannot lawfully be restricted, including mandatory rights relating to interoperability under applicable copyright law.

14. Intellectual Property

InnerSpace.ED, including its original software, structure, interface, visual design, written materials, exercises, illustrations, scenes, and other original content, is protected by applicable copyright and intellectual-property laws.

Unless otherwise identified, original material is owned by or lawfully licensed to the operator.

© 2026 Karina Zueva. All rights reserved.

Third-party materials remain the property of their respective owners and may be subject to separate licences and attribution requirements.

Use of InnerSpace.ED does not grant ownership of any name, domain, software, content, methodology, questionnaire, translation, or third-party material.

The InnerSpace.ED name must not be used in a manner that falsely suggests endorsement, partnership, certification, or affiliation.

15. Pilot Status

InnerSpace.ED is currently provided as a pilot version for evaluation and improvement.

Pilot users acknowledge that:

- features may be incomplete or experimental;
- errors or interruptions may occur;
- functionality may change;
- some features may be removed;
- the service may be temporarily unavailable;
- information entered into the browser may be lost when a page is refreshed or closed;
- no specific uptime or service level is guaranteed.

The purpose of the pilot is to evaluate usability, technical operation, professional relevance, and safety.

Participation does not establish that InnerSpace.ED, its exercises, or its questionnaire translations have been clinically or psychometrically validated or proven effective.

The operator may limit or discontinue pilot access where reasonably necessary for security, legal compliance, maintenance, product development, or user safety.

16. Pilot Feedback

Pilot participants may voluntarily provide feedback regarding InnerSpace.ED.

Feedback must not contain identifiable client information or confidential clinical material.

Unless otherwise agreed in writing, the participant permits the operator to use non-confidential feedback, ideas, suggestions, and error reports to evaluate, maintain, and improve InnerSpace.ED without an obligation to pay compensation.

This permission does not transfer ownership of the participant's pre-existing materials and does not permit the operator to publicly identify the participant without consent.

Testimonials, names, professional titles, logos, photographs, or quotations will not be published for marketing purposes without separate permission.

17. Third-Party Services and Materials

InnerSpace.ED may rely on or link to third-party services, libraries, hosting infrastructure, models, audio files, questionnaires, or other materials.

Third-party services and materials may be governed by their own terms, privacy policies, and licences.

The operator does not control third-party websites and is not responsible for their independent content, availability, security, or data-processing practices.

The presence of a link, citation, or third-party resource does not necessarily constitute endorsement.

18. Availability and Modifications

The operator may update, modify, suspend, restrict, or discontinue all or part of InnerSpace.ED where reasonably necessary.

Where reasonably possible, significant changes affecting an organised pilot will be communicated to current pilot participants.

The operator is not required to maintain any particular feature indefinitely.

Users are responsible for ensuring that they use the current version of the service and its accompanying instructions.

19. No Guarantee of Particular Outcomes

InnerSpace.ED is provided as a supportive professional tool.

The operator does not guarantee:

- a particular therapeutic or clinical outcome;
- a reduction in symptoms or distress;
- suitability for every professional, client, device, or situation;
- uninterrupted or error-free operation;
- compatibility with every browser or device;
- that questionnaire results will be complete or appropriate for every context.

Users must exercise their own professional judgement and must not rely exclusively on InnerSpace.ED when making decisions that may affect a person's health, treatment, or safety.

20. Liability

The operator is liable without limitation:

- for damage caused intentionally or through gross negligence;
- for injury to life, body, or health caused intentionally or negligently;
- where liability arises under mandatory product-liability law;
- where a guarantee has expressly been given;
- in any other situation in which liability cannot lawfully be excluded or limited.

In cases of ordinary negligence, the operator is liable only for a breach of a material contractual obligation whose fulfilment is necessary for the proper performance of these Terms and on which the user could reasonably rely.

In such cases, liability is limited to damage that was reasonably foreseeable and typical for this type of agreement when the user accepted these Terms.

Subject to the exceptions above, liability for ordinary negligence is excluded.

Nothing in these Terms excludes or limits the user's mandatory statutory rights.

21. User Responsibility for Breaches

Users are responsible for their own unlawful use of InnerSpace.ED and for violations of:

- client confidentiality;
- data-protection requirements;
- professional obligations;
- intellectual-property rights;
- these Terms of Use.

This provision does not create liability where the relevant act or damage was caused by the operator or where liability cannot lawfully be allocated to the user.

22. Suspension and Termination

A user may stop using InnerSpace.ED at any time.

The operator may restrict or terminate access where there is a reasonable basis to believe that the user:

- has materially violated these Terms;
- is misusing the service;
- has created a security or legal risk;
- is infringing intellectual-property rights;
- is using the service in a manner that may harm clients or other persons.

Where appropriate and reasonably possible, the user may first be given an opportunity to correct the violation.

Provisions concerning intellectual property, liability, confidentiality, governing law, and any rights or obligations that by their nature should survive termination will remain applicable after access ends.

23. No Paid Services Under These Terms

The current version of InnerSpace.ED is provided free of charge.

These Terms do not govern:

- subscriptions;
- paid licences;
- automatic renewals;
- payment processing;
- refunds;
- cancellation rights for paid services.

If paid services are introduced, separate commercial terms and any legally required consumer or business information will be provided before payment is accepted.

24. Changes to These Terms

The operator may update these Terms to reflect:

- changes to InnerSpace.ED;
- changes to the pilot;
- legal or regulatory developments;
- security requirements;
- the introduction of new service providers or business models.

The current version, effective date, and version number will be published on the website.

Material changes affecting current pilot participants will be communicated where reasonably possible. Where legally required, renewed acceptance will be requested before the updated Terms become binding.

25. Governing Law

These Terms are governed by the laws of the Federal Republic of Germany, excluding the United Nations Convention on Contracts for the International Sale of Goods.

This choice of law does not deprive a consumer of mandatory protections available under the law of the country in which the consumer habitually resides, where such protections apply.

The competent court will be determined under applicable procedural law. Nothing in these Terms creates an exclusive place of jurisdiction where such an agreement would not be legally permitted.

26. Severability

If any provision of these Terms is found to be invalid or unenforceable, the remaining provisions will remain in effect to the extent legally possible.

The invalid or unenforceable provision will be replaced by the applicable statutory rule.
